HERE'S WHY WE NEED THIS

Palm oil plantations are taking over the Borneo Rainforest, causing mass ancient rainforest loss, thousands of Orangutan and other wildlife are killed and injured for this vegetable fat that is used in many household items.

I Holley Somerville Knott created the Tell Someone Who Cares™ Social Enterprise at age 12 (Im now 14) to disrupt the palm oil industry and bring solutions that are based on the principles of agroforestry, which is an ecologically responsible farming system, forest cover is maintained alongside sustainable production of food and other natural resources. This method helps improve the economic, environmental and social value of the forest, ensuring that the local people will protect it for generations to come.

I have been working with the Dayak people of Borneo, the Masarang Foundation and the Movie producers from Rise of the Eco Warriors Documentary and I created this platform of solutions: Featuring the amazing illipe nut butter; a palm oil ALTERNATIVE!

Sustainable and native to Borneo, illipe comes from the Shorea Stenoptera tree and is a high quality vegetable fat creating a successful economy for the Dayak people so they can say no to the palm oil Companies chopping down their forest, and instead they plant more trees to keep it a safe place!

I ship the illipe here to Australia and use it in my sustainable coconut illipe product range - so every purchase helps regenerate the rainforest and keep it a safe place for people, wildlife and biodiversity!

I would love it if you would support the person who has approached you and through Tell Someone Who Cares™ Be the Solution!
